NEWS - Ronald Reagan's first order as Chief Executive was challenged as being unconstitutional in a law suit filed by the National Treasury Employees union. The order was issued on Inauguration day to freeze the hiring of federal employees. The initiation of the policy is November 5th, the day after the elections. The suit charges that the order is ineffective for the time period Reagan did not have the authority of the Presidency.

Among other actions taken by Reagan and his administration is the lifting of all remaining price controls placed on crude oil, gasoline and propane. The price is expected to increase about 12¢ and the price of heating oil 10¢ per gallon.

Reagan has requested the assistance of Congress in raising the limit on the national debt by $50 billion. Reagan said "conditions of the economy and governments commitments that we have inherited leave us no choice in this matter." The bill is expected to come before the House next week.

David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and budget, has prepared a plan to cut food stamp assistance by 25% or $3.8 billion over the next two years. Congress is expected to fight the cut in the program which presently supports 22 million citizens.

In the first days of his administration, Reagan seems to be attempting to fulfill his promises to cut "waste and fraud" and "controlling growth of the federal government."

TO THE APATHETIC FANS OF MARIAN COLLEGE

What is the problem? It seems that the only fans the men's basketball team gets are the parents. If it weren't for the parents there would be no fans and no crowd. We don't even have a crowd with the few (and I mean very few) loyal student fans the team has. We always seem to have a small problem with attendance. I guess nobody likes the fact that the team is 14-7, or that this year the team has a better chance than ever to go to Kansas City. I can't believe that there is a small "mumble" during play and then at a time-out, when there is supposed to be noise and cheering, the gym sounds like a funeral parlor. I may be mistaken because I saw the cheering and noise when the team plays away, I guess this school only has mutes that go to the games.

I think I have a reason why no one likes to come to our games. For some strange reason, most people don't support losing teams, but in our case, Marian College doesn't support a winning team! I guess the team will have to start losing games to draw attendance. It's really bad when the students ask what time the team plays, where they play and who they play. What do you think the schedules that are printed are for?

I also guess that the students can't fit the ball games into their busy schedules of visiting Sakitumi Lounge and Georgetown bar for happy hours. Most people don't realize that the team needs a crowd. That seems to be a greater surge of adrenalin in the team when they play in front of a large, noisy, cheering crowd. It would be great if Booster club could have a bus to go to some of the closer away-games, like Franklin, but that would be too much to think of! Not to mention that the Naval Armory is only about 1 mile away, which I guess most students think is too far away to be interested in going to. What does the school have to do? Get a bus for people to go down to the Armory? I also guess that trying to ride with a friend who has a car would be too logical to think of, being that the students are lacking in support and have an overabundance of APATHY!!

This apathy doesn't only show up at the men's games but also at the women's. It's incredible that the girl's record is 9-3 and they have the same fan apathy as the guy's. The girl's have as good a chance of going to the playoffs and elsewhere as the guy's do. It's just sick that a small, close-knit college that has 2 winning basketball teams can not get any fan support except the few loyal and parents.

I think I can say that the players are getting tired of having to cheer for themselves. Why can't students get unapathetic and attend a few games. I can't really believe that people can't take 2 hours out of a night and quit "studying" and go see some entertainment and give some support! I'm just tired of the apathy! Why can't students support 2 winning teams?

You tell me!

There is a proposal before the College Council to extend the period in which students may withdraw without a grade from a course. The proposed changes will be posted on the Student Board bulletin board across from the Cafeteria in Clare Hall. Let us know what you think of the changes and which one you prefer so that our representatives on the Council will know how to vote on it.

For any College group or organization looking for a band! The Spectrum Taylor Band (four Marian students) will perform at any campus activity for a nominal charge. If you are interested, contact Chris Tuell or John Hahn.

WHY' DOYLE HALL...?

This letter is directed to the individual or group of individuals that had fun at the expense of their fellow Doyle Hall residents(a fire alarm was pulled).

Policy states that if an individual intentionally reports a false alarm ( i.e. pulling an alarm) he can, if found guilty, be subject to the maximum sanction of dismissal ( 5.01 Hl ; Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities).

In the past, people have overlooked and abused the above. Something must be done. This statement is not to serve as a warning, but rather as an informative and reinforcing comment. Reinforcing ,hopefully, the ignorance and severity of such an act. We are dealing with a situation which is potentially dangerous to human lives. Please consider this before pulling another.

Dan Remley, R.D.
Doyle Hall R.A.'s, and the other annoyed residents

PLAYER'S CORNER

Well, sports fans, the Marian Knight's Woman's Basketball team is now 9-3 for the season. Coming off a 4-2 record at semester's end, the Knights dropped a tough one to Indiana Tech by a score of 66-56 to make them 4-3. But now the women are on a winning streak having won their last five home games. They defeated St. Mary of the Woods 93-32 on Jan. 20th. On Jan. 22nd they took on Franklin's "B" team and defeated them 74-56. Then the Knights took on their rival Hanover in a very close game 64-60. Marian won another squeaker on the 27th defeating De Paw 63-60. Last night the Knights came from behind (29-21 at the half) to defeat IUPUI 56-49. The women have another home game lined up against Manchester on Sat. Jan. 31st at 11p.m. Then they head down to Hanover on Feb. 5th. Watch for a very exciting rematch between these two teams.

Remember Sat. Jan. 31st, 11a.m. in Clare Hall gym. The Knights take on Manchester, so come down and watch a very exciting women's basketball game.

See you there,
M.H.

The first Photographic Exhibition of the Photography Club at Marian College will be held from the first of February (the day after tomorrow) through the 20th of the same month. The official opening of the Exhibit will be at 3pm Sunday in the College Library.

"Marian in Focus," as the exhibit is called, consists of about 30 pieces of photographic art, depicting different scenes of our 114 park-like acres. Asked about the theme of the exhibit, Dr. Drew Appleby, advisor to the club, said that "since it is the very first exhibition of our club, we thought it would be quite appropriate to dedicate it to our own school." When asked about the quality of work put into this exhibition, club president Tuan Kim Phung noted that "these pieces of art which are going to be put on public display were selected by a panel of responsible people. There were many entries, but these were the only ones selected."

The Photography Club is eager to hear the evaluation of her creation. "We want the Marian community to react without any fear or favor," said one member, "after all, that's the only way they can help us help ourselves."

So, please be there on Sunday at 3pm in the library for the official opening. Feast your eyes but don't be carried away. Say what you feel about this photographic achievement.
